

Do you want to help your First Nations clients improve their financial wellbeing?

If you are employed by a community organisation you may be eligible to attend free MoneyBusiness Coach Training.

MoneyBusiness Coach Training will prepare you to work with your clients to build their money skills, knowledge and confidence in areas such as:

- Making the money last until payday
- Setting goals
- Know how to use technology and stay safe online
- Banking options
- Money loans
- Managing paperwork
- Types of scams and how to protect against them.

“The majority of our clients have very little or no education when it comes to their finances. The [MoneyBusiness] programs are educating our clients on how to manage their finances, how to use finances properly and to be aware of scams and money lenders.” - MoneyBusiness Coach

MoneyBusiness is a flexible education program for adults designed to build the money management skills, knowledge and confidence of First Nations people and develop a stronger savings culture. ANZ owns and developed MoneyBusiness in partnership with the Australian Government in 2005. The program is delivered in partnership with ICAN and funded/supported by the Australian Government Department of Social Services. MoneyBusiness does not directly promote ANZ products and provides unbiased consumer education.
