

Lead & Support Colleagues training CHCSS00084

Many workers in financial counselling, financial capability and community services jobs end up being leaders of teams.

Not everyone sets out to be a leader.

Leading others in a workplace is complex and takes specific skills, emotional intelligence and additional knowledge. It's vital to understand key aspects of leadership and ways of working with others to do this well and to develop and retain personal and team wellbeing.

This course is an accredited skill set that provides you with knowledge and information about ways of working with others in your team to develop best practice and to develop confidence in your abilities.
